

Internet Use Agreement

Access to the Internet is a privilege and involves responsibilities.

When using the Internet at school, I will:

1. Be responsible and polite because information I place on the Internet may be seen by many people.
2. Access Internet sites for school projects only.
3. Be considerate of other students and limit my time on the Internet.
4. Respect my privacy and the privacy of other students. I won't share personal information or passwords, and I won't reveal anyone else's personal address or phone number.
5. Give the name of the source (author, title, URL, etc.) when I use information from the Internet in a school project.
6. Get permission from my teacher, or the lab supervisor, before downloading and printing material from the Internet, before using discussion lines, or before sending e-mail.

I understand that failure to follow these guidelines may result in losing access privileges at school and/or discipline.
